

Digital Television copyright protection should not be implemented. Look at the example of VCRs, these now mainstream devices would have never been developed with a broadcast flag and a major revenue stream for the movie industry (not foreseen when VCRs were first being developed) would have never happened. "Fair use" of a television show being broadcast into my home included being able to record it for later viewing in my opinion.